HILO SOCIETY NOTES

Celebrate Silver Wedding.

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, July 24.—Not in the Big Island's history since the days of the old monarchy has a social event surpassed in brilliance and gaiety the celebration at Masonic hall last Monday evening in observance of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Moir of Onomea. In the beauty of wonderful decorations, charming gowns, pretty women, excellent music, large attendance, and unobtrusive pleasure it was an episode that will be remembered for years to come by those who joined in the festivity.

By no means the least of the enjoyable features was the list of silver wedding presents bestowed on the happy pair who have spent their entire 25 years of married life among the people of Hawaii and whose invitation list was filled with the names of long-tried and true friends. It would be impossible to give an accounting here of all the gifts, but among them were the following: A five-piece silver tea set and tray from the officers of the Onomea Sugar Company, whom Mr. Moir has served as manager so many years; a large silver vase and tray from the skilled employees of the same company, and a huge, magnificent coffee set and tray from the members of Kilauea lodge No. 320, F. & A. M.

In attendance at the affair were more than 300 persons, fully 150 couples, who enjoyed the dancing until the wee hours of Tuesday morning. The music was of the best, provided by a local glee club with such spell-binding qualities that the revelers, despite the warm weather, often demanded as many as four, five and six encores.

It would be almost impossible to imagine a prettier, more fitting system of decoration than that adorning Masonic hall Monday night. From the foot of the stairway to the roof garden above, where the dancers escaped from time to time to catch a few breaths of cool air it was a bower of greenery, combined with masses of every variety of flowers these tropical islands possess. Entwined and partly hidden among the leaves of the dense foliage were hundreds of varicolored incandescent bulbs, some in the form of birds, shedding subdued light over the rooms and corridors. Strung around the coping of the roof garden were other rows of bright colored lights which caused the building to loom up beautifully in the darkness, making it conspicuous from viewpoints several miles distant.

Over the spot where the silver wedding bride and groom met their many friends and received the felicitations of the occasion hung a big silver bell, the work of Mrs. G. H. Vicens. Chief credit for the decorative scheme perhaps is due Mr. and Mrs. Vicens, Mrs. H. V. Patten, Mrs. William McKay, Mrs. C. S. Carlsmith and Mrs. E. N. Holmes, whose untiring efforts were amply rewarded by the artistic creation they conceived and executed.

Part and parcel of the pleasurable ensemble were the refreshments, supplied by Charles Lycurgus, consisting of sandwiches, several varieties of punch and coffee. Half a dozen punch bowls placed in convenient niches supplied the needs of the dancers.

Bachelor Party.

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, July 24.—Hilo's social season by no means is ended. In fact, it seems only to be now at full tide, and one of the best things yet to come is on the tentative program for a date two or three weeks hence—a "bachelors' party," at which a large number of the town's younger male unmarried social set will play the part of hosts. It hardly is possible to make any more definite announcement at this time for the plans are only in embryo, but it is pretty certain the affair will take place and that it is going to be a distinct feature of the season. The idea is that the young fellows, so many of whom are without homes and facilities of entertaining, have been the guests at so many local homes the last few months they are seeking some method of repaying obligations. Hence they will band together, probably secure the Hilo hotel or some other place equally desirable, and give a dancing party at which all the hosts who have entertained them so generously will in turn become the bachelors' guests. The suggestion, broached only a few days ago, is meeting popular favor among the young fellows about town and the event already seems an assured success.
